LOCAL LACONICS.

-The Post Band performed on the Battery last Saturday afternoon. A large number of people were present.

-A heavy rain storm, accompanied by an unusual amount of thunder and lightning for the season, visited our city last evening, and the clouds continued to empty themselves up to the hour of our going to press.

-Two white men got drunk in King, near Line street, yesterday afternoon, and had a pugilistic encounter. One struck the other upon the forehead with a stick, and inflicted an ugly wound over the left eye. Both were carried to the upper Gaardhouse.

-A meeting of Mackey-Moses Republicans was held at Summerville on Saturday. Only a tew persons were present. Speeches were made by John G. Mackey and C. W. Buttz. Each endeavored to convince the meeting of his superior claims to the solicitorship, and each alleges that his speech produced the de-

-A disturbance occurred in South Bay street, about eight o'clock, on Saturday evening. Private O'Donnell, of the night police force, arrested one of the men that were creating it, and attempted to carry him to the Guardhouse. Before he had gone very far, however, some unknown person struck him senseless with a brickbat. The prisoner escaped. O'Donnell was carried to the Guardhouse by three citizens. He was confined in bed all day yesterday.

ACTIVITY OF BUSINESS .- An excellent idea of the present activity of every kind of business in Charleston can be had by pausing for a few moments at the corner of Meeting and Calhoun streets, between sunrise and dark, on any day except Sunday. As far as the eye can see up Meeting and down Calhoun it beholds two unbroken streams of drays, trucks, &c., running counter to each other, one stream up, the other down. The drays are piled with cotton and every description of merchandise, the dust rises in mid air like a cloud of mist, while the clatter of the vehicles and shouts of the drivers are painful and It will supply a want long felt in the South. deafening to the ear.

DEATH OF A CONVICT .- Ban Baldwin, one of the negroes who assisted in the murder of Mr. W. B. Fidea, at Oakley, on the Northeastern Railroad, about a year ago, died at the county jall yesterday morning, of dropsy. Baldwin, it will be remembered, was sentenced along elections. Said act provides for the appointwith Sam. White, by the November, 1871, term of the General Sessions Court, to be hung for the deed on the second of February following. White was hung, but Baldwin's sentence was commuted, one day before the execution, to imprisonment for life in the Penitentiary. Since that time he has been gradually sinking until vesterday, when the end arrived. The coroner has been notified, and will hold an inquest ever the body this morning.

A DRY GOODS PALACE.

The New Establishment of Messrs. Farchgott, Benedict & Co.

The new dry goods store of Messrs. Furchgott, Benedict & Co., at No. 275 King street, will be open and ready for business this morning. The store has been fitted up with an elegance and elaborateness that make it the finest establishment of the kind that has been opened in Charleston since the war. The building is three stories high, twenty-eight feet wide and one hundred and flity deep. The tront of the two upper stories is painted in a light cream color, with green windows. On the first floor is a handsome iron front cast at the founderles of the Phœnix Iron Works. It consists of four Corinthian columns supporting a transverse iron beam, and is divided into a large doorway in the centre, nine feet wide, with a show window eight feet wide on either side, all with square headings. The windows have each two vertical lights of French plate glass, four feet wide by ten feet high. Across the doorway is a square transom with one horizontal light, two feet wide, of plate glass, on which the name of the firm and the number of the store are displayed in handsome gold lettering. The door is recessed from the street about two and a half feet.

On entering the store, the effect upon the eye is brilliant and effective. On either side are long rows of shelving, divided into sections of three feet long by small circular columps, and surmounted by broad and elaborate cornices. In front of the shelving are ranged a series of white counters, with mahogany tops, bearing a number of handsome showcases. Before the counters are neat iron stools, with red velvet cushions, screwed to the floor at regular intervals. On the south side, about the centre of the store, is the office, enclosed by a wooden partitition, four feet high, surmounted by a light wooden railing. On the north side of the store, directly opposite the office, is a commodious stairway, communicating with the second floor. The ceiling at the entrance is about fifteen feet high, of white polished plastering, and ornamented with several rosettes, ranged along the centre. About the middle of the store, the ceiling suddenly rises to the heighth of nineteen or twenty feet. During the day, this floor receives an abundance of light and air from thirteen windows, with circular headings, cut in the side and rear walls. At night it is lighted up by a series of two light brackets attached at short intervals to the cornices surmounting the shelving on either side of the store. These brackets are bronzed, with gilded tips and ornaments and handsome cut-class globes. The office is lighted by a handsome two-light pendant, extending down from the ceiling. These fixture were brought out from New York by the firm, and put up by Mr. P. L. Guillemin, of this city. Next to the entrance on the north side is the cloth department, in which are kept every kind of foreign and domestic woollens, longcloths, cassimeres, &c. Next, on the same side, is the flannel department. Beyond this again, in the order in which they are named, follow the gentlemen's furnishing goods, white goods, blankets and shawl departments. Next to the entrance on the south side is the ladies' department. This extends to the office, and will be under the charge of three first-class saleswomen. It is subdivided into the ladies' hosiery, glove, trimming, velvet, notion, ribbon, artificial flower, feather, plume, ladies' underware, corset, handkerchief, linen goods, hoopskirt and bustle departments. West of the office on the same side are the foreign and domestic dry goods and slik departments. The platform in the rear of the store is divided into the three departments of mourning goods, fine dress goods, and all kinds ot novelties, which are respectively located on the north, west and south sides.

Oa the second floor is a large room sixty eight feet long by twenty-eight wide, constituting one of the wholesale departments. A ledge three feet deep, raised about one foot from the floor, extends around the four wa In the centre of the floor are a series of long tables ranged transversely with the length of the room, and at short distances apart. On the ledge and tables are piles of goods of various kinds, such as shirtings, sheetings, cambrics, dress goods, Canton flannels, shawls, blankets, velveteens, fine cloths and millinery goods. An inclined shelf running along the north wall, about four feet from the floor, supports a full assortment of ribbons and notions. In the rear of this apartment, and reached by six steps through a wide passage way, is the carpet and matting department. Here is a full and rich assortment of carpets, oil cloths, mattings, rugs and every imaginable article belonging to the department. In this dict & Co., No. 244 King street. room is a circular hatchway for elevating goods from the first floor. A flight of steps on the south wall connects with the third story. This a room sixty-eight feet long, by twenty-eight feet wide. The north and west walls are fitted up with shelves, the south and east with a ledge similar to that on the second floor, and the centre of the floor is supplied with a similar set of tables. This comprises the wholesale department for Jeans, satinets, cloths, tickings, plaids, canaburgs, flannels, handker_ chiefs; gentlemen and ladies' underwear. white and linen goods, hats, umbrellas, soaps, perfumeries and other goods.

Messrs, Furchgott, Benedict & Co. have not yet completed the arrangement of their store, owing principally to the detention of their goods caused by the unprecedented rush of freights, both by rall and steamer. They hope, however, to be in thorough working order by Wednesday. Their stock will comprise one of the most extensive and complete that has been kept in Charleston since the war. They will conduct their business upon the oneprice system, and will, under no circumstances, deviate from the established price. Until Thursday next the store will be kept open every evening till half-past nine o'clock, for the inspection of the public. As already stated in THE NEWS, the work of improving has been conducted by the Devereux Broth ers, and has been completed with their usual promptness and taste.

A NEW MAGAZINE .- A new magazine, to be called the Charleston Medical Journal, will be started in this city in January next. Its editors will be among the ablest of the Charleston faculty, and its contributors will comprise the best medical talent of the Southern States.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT RELATIVE TO ELECTIONS .- Hor. George S. Bryan, United States district judge for South Carolina, will, under the late election law of Congress, open the Circuit Court on Wednesday next, October 3, to hear applications for supervisors of ment of two supervisors for each election precinct-one representing each of the parties. Applications must be made to Samuel T. Poinier, who has been appointed general supervisor for the State. It is made the duty of Mr. Poinier to report to the court two fit persons to superintend as supervisors at each poll, and the court makes the appointment. Applications must be made to Mr. Poinier at THE WORM THAT DIETH NOT.

A New Horror-A Feroclous Parasite Taken from a Man's Leg.

A short time ago a sailor was sent to the City Hospital from the British bark Georgiana, who was supposed to be suffering from a sore leg. The man had been ailing for near three that there was anything serious the matter with him. Accordingly, when, a few days before his removal to the Hospital, he declared himself unable to walk about, the captain of the ship supposed that he was endeavoring to make an excuse for getting away from the vessel, that he might be left in port, the ship being prepared to sail in a few days. When removed to the hospital, the man's right leg was very much swollen, and manifested the symptoms of erysipelas, for which malady his affection was at first mistaken. At the end of a lew days, however, an abscess formed upon the inner side of the ankle from which, after it had burst, protruded about three inches of a white membranous-looking substance, about an eighth of an inch in diameter. This singular manifestation induced a careful examination of the leg, which developed the fact that the man was afflicted with the dracunculus, or Cuinea worm. This is a horrible parasite, found only along the shores of the Indian Ocean, Red Sea and certain portions of the Mediterranean. It infests damp and muddy soils and impure water, and generally attacks the feet and legs, but sometimes other portions also of the body. At the time that it forsakes its native element for the more luxurious habitation of flesh and blood, it is scarcely larger than a common flea; but, having once buried itself beneath the skin, it grows with slarming rapidity, and will attain a size varying from six inches to six feet in length, by one-twelfth to one-eighth of an Inch in diameter. It lies dormant until it reaches the age of maturity, after which it commences a series of wanderings and meanderings about the muscles and bones, which cause intense pain to the unsuspecting victim. It always travels downwards, and with such rapidity that it will sometimes travel the whole length of the human frame in twenty-four hours. It will sometimes come to the surface and lie under the skin like a long white cord, but should the surgeon attempt to extract it with the knife without first securing it with a nipper, it will elude his grasp and scamper away with the agility of an eel. It a portion of the worm is removed, the remaining portion will not die, but continues as gay and lively as ever. The first symptoms of the Guinea worm are a disagreeable itching and irritation of the infected parts. After it begins to move about, its paths are followed by external abscesses, and when the paths lie along the stomach, internal abscesse also. It always ultimately endeavors to leave the system by working its way through the skin, generally near the ankle, but this is only after it has left from ten to fifteen young behind. The usual number of worms that are found in one person varies from one to fifty. There is one case on record, however, of a man dying from the effects o the Gninea worm, whose body and skin were nothing but a net-work of these horrible creatures. Death rarely results from the ravages of this worm, and when it does, it is generally the result of some disease produced by the inflammation and other effects of the worm's wanderings. The Guinea worm does not confine its ravages to man, but will also attack dogs and horses. The sailor in question made a voyage to the eastern coast of Africa about six months ago, and while there received the parasites into his system. One of these worms has already been extracted from his right leg, but another has made its appearance in the left. He is doing as well as can be expected under the circumstances. This is probably the first case of the kind ever known in Charleston.

The Daily Hulletin says: Receipter to-day 1987 bbls rosin and 235 do spirits turpentine. Spirits turpentine continues very strong at a further advance, with the tendency still upwards. Sales 100 bbls from the dock at 63°, and 150 New York bbls at 65c, the market closing at 64c for merchantable order in Southern bbls. In strained rosin we note sales of 400 bbls coramon strained at $4 25; 300 bbls gool at $4 40; 100 bbls do at $4 60, the later pice being freely bid at the close; and 500 bbls No 2 at $4 62%. Tar continues quiet and unchanged. Pitch $4 37%14 50—generally held at at the outside figure.

Foreign Stocks of Cotton.

The Lendon News, of September 14, says: According to the latest returns the stock of cotton at Havre was 220,700 bales, against 75,400 bales last year; the proportion of American produce being 33,200 bales, against 49,500 bales in 1871. The stock of cotton at Marselles is 18,000 bales, against 20,100 bales; at Bremei, 38,800 bales, against 42,100 bales; and at Amsterdam, 83,200 bales, against 49,000 bales in 1371. It is estimated that 20,000 bales of cotto are afloat for Havre, against 92,000 bales; 600 to Bremein, 19,500 bales; and 11,200 bales to Amsterdam, against 8300 bales in 1871. The London Times of September 14 says: Numerous orders have been received by French iron masters, and a further advance has been noted masters, and a further advance has been noted as regards mest articles. From the comparative absence of any stock, there is little doing in rough pig; the article is however, in considerable demand. The iron founders are generally advancing their rates, and in some cases the advance is as much as 10 cr. 12 per cent. Wrought iron and axies participate in the general upward movement. Iron minerals have experienced an advance in the Hante Marne. The Donjeux rolling mill, in the Hante Marne, worked by Mess's. Bonnor & Co., has been disposed of for £10,520. In the Muerthe et-Moselle prices have experienced an advance in consequence of important purchases made for the direnset works; 18,000 to 20,000 tons of pig, to be delivated partly in 1872 at chases made for the Grensot Works; 18,000 to 20,000 tons of pig, to be delivered partiy in 1872 at £4 163 per ton, and partly in 1873 at £4 163 per ton, are stated to have been purchased.

In the Belgian iron trade prices are still advancing. The requirements of consumption being urgent a fall is not at all probable at present, still the future is very uncertain. The Belgian total trade remains firm. Attempts are still being coal trade remains firm. coal trade remains firm. Attempts are still being made by English and other foreign firms and companies to obtain coal in Beigium. Purchasers exhibit a disposition to enter into arrangements for several months' supply at present prices, but coal-owners show little inclination to assent to such arrangements, as they anticipate higher rates, while contracts in course of execution acsorb almost all their production. In France the upward tendency in coal appears to gather additional strength every day. Numerous and pressing orders come to hand, and it is extremely dimcult to provide for them.
